"It is a great satisfaction to have, for the first time, a really good translation of the long series of contributions in which Freud has gradually built up during more than thirty years the imposing structure of psycho-analytic theory.... This opportunity of closely following the historical development of Freud's experience and thought is the great service the present collection will render to serious students of psycho-analysis."

Nation and Athenaeum.

"This is one of the most valuable translations of Freud's work: it gives an opportunity of seeing the gradual formation and confirmation of his views: it proves again that the sciene of psycho-analysis is not haphazard, but empiric, and that its development has been steady and continuous." Spectator.

"No one . . . who has a real interest in psychopathology can afford to neglect this opportunity of going to the fountain-head. It will be a revelation to many to discover how much more intelligible Freud is than the majority of those who write in his name."

Birmingham Post.

THE HOGARTH PRESS 52 Tavistock Square London W. C. 1.

No. 11. Further Contributions to the Theory and Technique of Psycho-Analysis. By DR. SANDOR FERENCZI. 28s.

"The longer studies in particular merit the careful attention of all psychologists who wish to understand the nature and justification of the contribution made by psycho-analysis to theories of human behaviour."

British Journal of Psychology.

No. 12. The Ego and the Id. By SIGMUND FREUD. 6s.

"Those who are interested in the theories set forth by Freud will do well to read in this little book some of the recent views of this original thinker."

Medical Times.

No. 13. Selected Papers of Karl Abraham, M.D. With an Introductory Memoir by ERNEST JONES. Translated by Douglas Bryan and Alix Strachey. 30s.

"For psycho-analysts this volume is one of the most important that has been published."

New Statesman.

No. 14. Index Psycho-Analyticus 1893—1926. By JOHN RICKMAN, M.A., M.D.

188

A Bibliography of writings on Psycho-Analysis arranged chronologically under Authors. Many of the writers have revised their own bibliographies. References are given to translations, abstracts and reviews where they appear in scientific periodicals. In all, about 10,000 references, mainly to English and German, also to French, Dutch, Hungarian, Italian, Polish, Russian, Spanish, Swedish and Portuguese books and papers.

No. 15. The Future of an Illusion.

By SIGMUND FREUD. "Dr. Freud's new book is of peculiar interest. In it he has allowed himself one of his rare excursions from the field of strict specialization which he has made his own. The Future of an Illusion is concerned with a discussion of the nature of religious belief. It is quite short (one hundred pages) and it is exceedingly simply and lucidly written, with hardly a technical term. . . . Whatever we may think of Dr. Freud's point of view (and it will be exceedingly unpalatable to some) few will be able, after reading this book, to deny the nobility of his mind, his courage, and his lofty disinterestedness."

The Spectator.

No. 16. The Meaning of Sacrifice.

By R. MONEY-KYRLE, M.A., Ph.D.

18s. This book attempts to elaborate the celebrated theory put forward in Freud's Totem and Tabu, and to apply it to a wider variety of sacrificial rites.

"The book is unusually lucid for a psycho-analytic work, unusually original for a Ph.D. thesis, has an excellent abstract, and is a worthy addition to the series to which it belongs." Eugenics Review

No. 17. Civilization and Its Discontents. By SIGMUND FREUD.

In this book which, like The Future of an Illusion, is not written for the expert or the psychoanalyst, Dr. Freud devotes all his wisdom and unrivalled knowledge of the human mind to a study of the meaning of civilization.

"The theme of the new volume is developed with the greatest richness of content, and one might use many columns without exhausting the invaluable dicta on men and their institutions which strew Spectator.

No. 18. The Psychology of Clothes.

By J. C. FLÜGEL, B.A., D.Sc. Illustrated. 21s.

"At last we have a really adequate book on the psychology of clothes. Dr. Flügel's not only fills a want; it closes an epoch." Week-End-Review.

"Since Carlyle's 'Sartor Resartus" the subject of dress has never been so comprehensively treated."

Liverpol Post and Mercury.

No. 19. Ritual. By DR. THEODOR REIK. With a Preface by SIGMUND FREUD. Translated by Douglas Bryan.

"The intensely deep analysis and the ingenuity of interpretation may render the general conclusions unacceptable to some, but as an illustration of the Freudian outlook on certain trends discoverable in many forms of religion the book is admirable. It will stimulate thought, even if it does not induce agreement."

British Medical Journal.

No. 20. On the Nightmare. By ERNEST JONES, M.D. 21s.
"This is an extraordinarily interesting book."

Sunday Times.

"... the conspicuous ability with which the author handles succesively his themes of vampire, werewolf, devil, witch and night fiend ... his mastery of literatures new and old."

No. 21. The Defeat of Baudelaire. By RENÉ LAFORGUE.

Translated by Herbert Agar.

10s. 6d.

"This excellently translated book is a psychoanalytic study of the neurosis of Baudelaire. Baudelaire provides plenty of easy material for the psychoanalyst, and great amount of this is made use of with much skill in the present study. . . . There is an interesting, if somewhat one-sided, chapter on the psychology of artistic creation."

British Journal of Psychology.

No. 22. The Psycho-Analysis of Children.

By MELANIE KLEIN. Translated from the German by Alix Strachey.

18s.

Mrs. Klein's book, which has been eagerly awaited by all who know her work, should revolutionize child analysis. She has already proved, by the special technique she devised, that she is a pioneer in that branch of analysis. She has made possible the extension of psycho-analysis to the field of early child-hood, and in this way inaugurated not only a curative method for the neurosis of that age, but also a prophylactic system to ward off the development of later neuroses and psychoses. In this book she describes both the theory and practice of her methods.

No. 23. Psycho-Analysis of the Neuroses.

By HELENE DEUTSCH. Translated from the German by Dr. Robson Scott 10s. 6d.

This book is by Dr. Helene Deutsch, a very experienced analyst, who is Director of the Special Clinic at Vienna. Students have long complained of the lack of an adequate text-book on psycho-analysis, and Dr. Deutsch has now fulfilled this need. In addition to giving a comprehensive representation of the subject, she has incorporated personal contributions of her own and has enlivened the whole with rich illustrative material drawn from her clinical experience.

The medical Value of Psychoanalysis

By FRANZ ALEXANDER, M.D. . . . . Doll. 2.75
The author of this book shows the necessity for a clother relationship between the Psychoanalist and the doctor. This book offers a practical guide to Psychoanalytical knowledge and its use by doctors and their "Psychological" patients.

Outline of clinical Psychoanalysis

By Dr. OTTO FENICHEL . . . . . . Doll. 5.—
This is the first systematic outline of Psychoanalysis from the clinical point of view. Dr. Otto Fenichel possesses an encyclopedic knowledge of the psychoanalytic literature and is in addition an experienced clinician. In this book, profusely illustrated with case histories, he has brought together all the dates in the field of general and special Psychopathology which Psychoanalysis has been gathering for almost forty years.
